RAFAEL

Rafael
(front cover)
A 17-year-old beachboy, cocky and full of fun. Hunting for sunbathing privacy, Rafael led Jay to his secluded rocky glen, high above Apaculco Bay. Utmost privacy was indeed guaranteed, as was a slight case of poison ivy and bramble scratches. But to Jay, these were insignificant compared to this shining model in these uninhibited poses here and on the front cover.

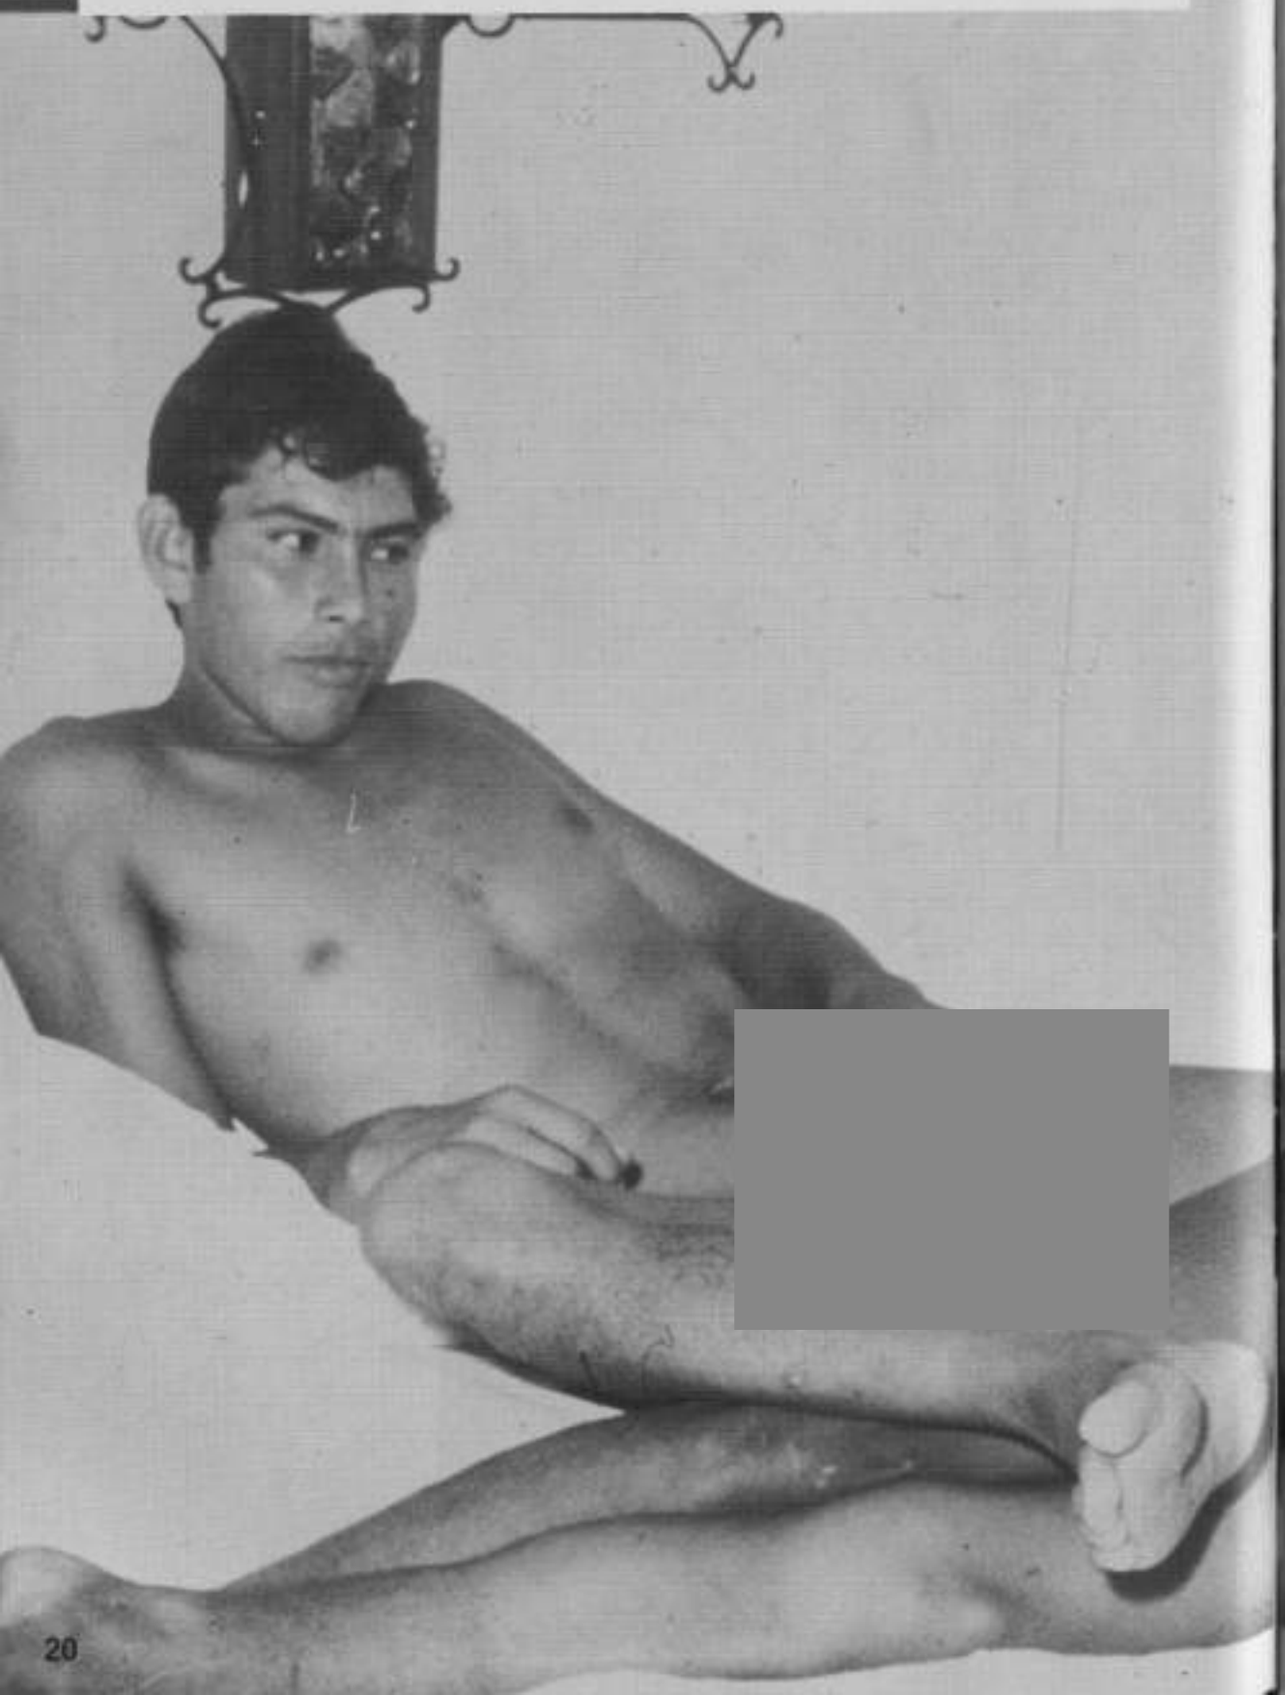
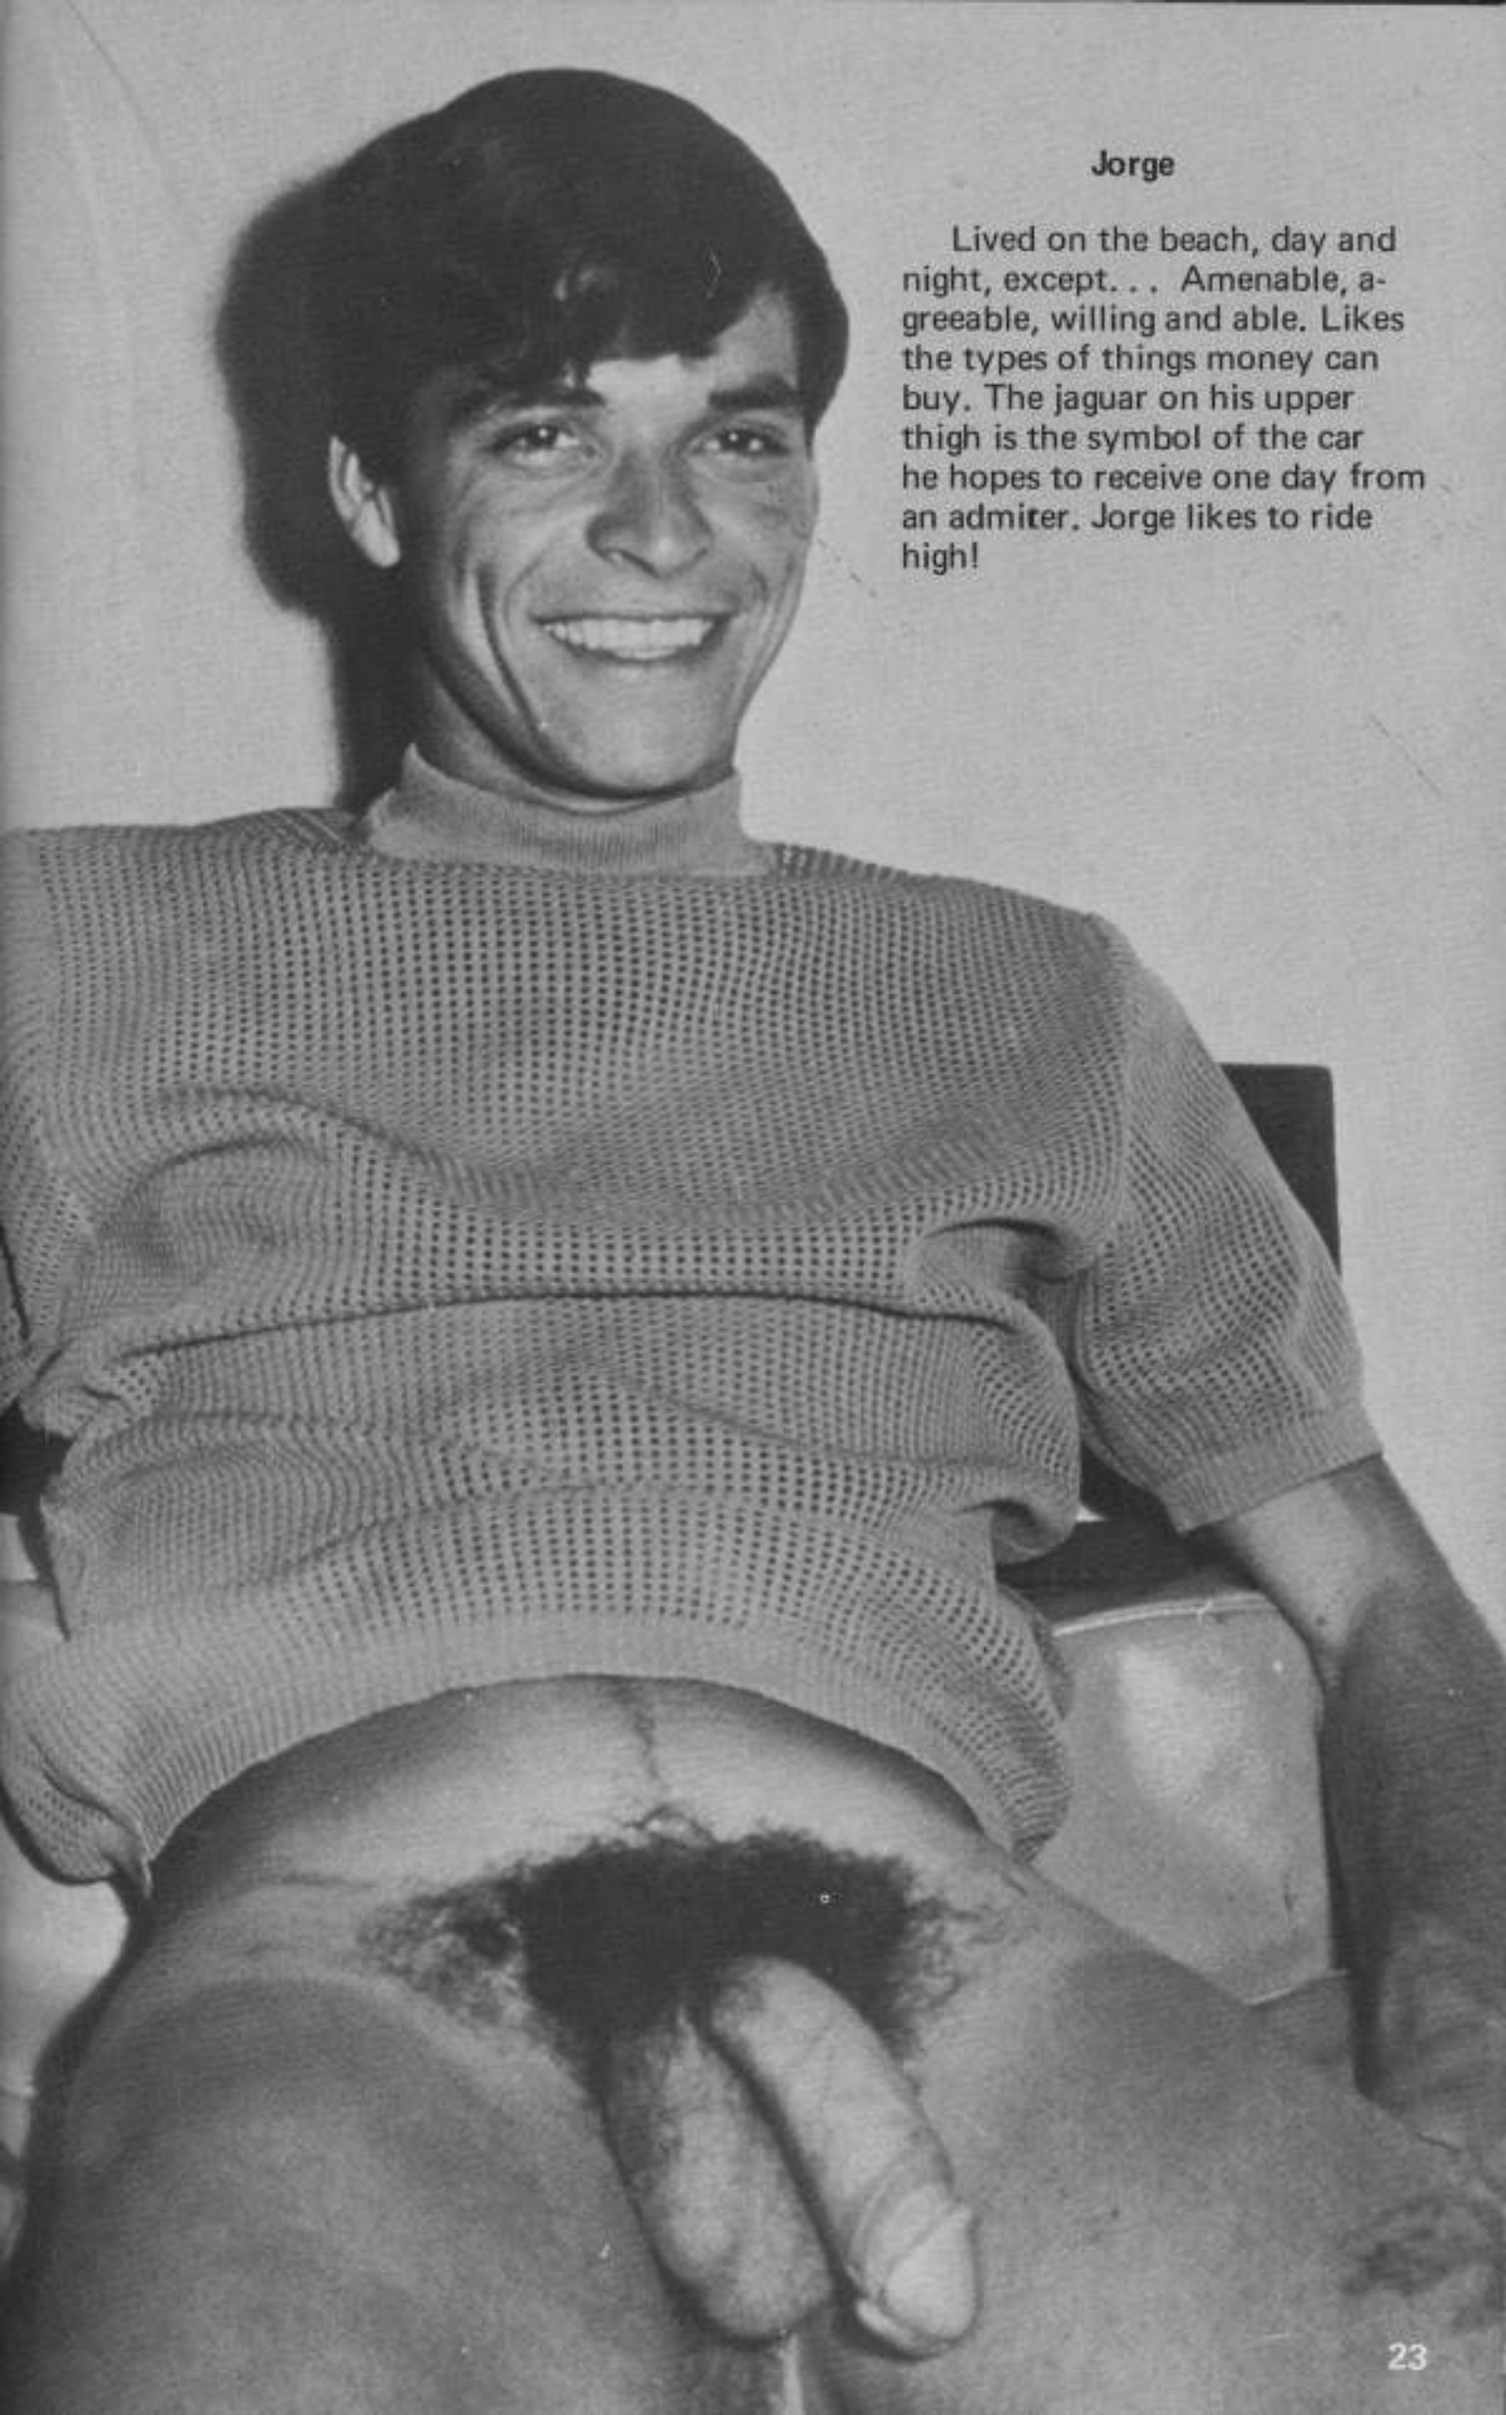
Acapulco is not paradise on earth. In paradise everything would be to one's taste. There would be sun. There would be a magnificent beach. There would be a gloriously scenic bay. You say that Acapulco is known to have all of these? Well, you're right—and there's the rub! Acapulco is not paradise on earth because of the boys. Just how can you settle down to one boy when so many are so beautiful and so available?



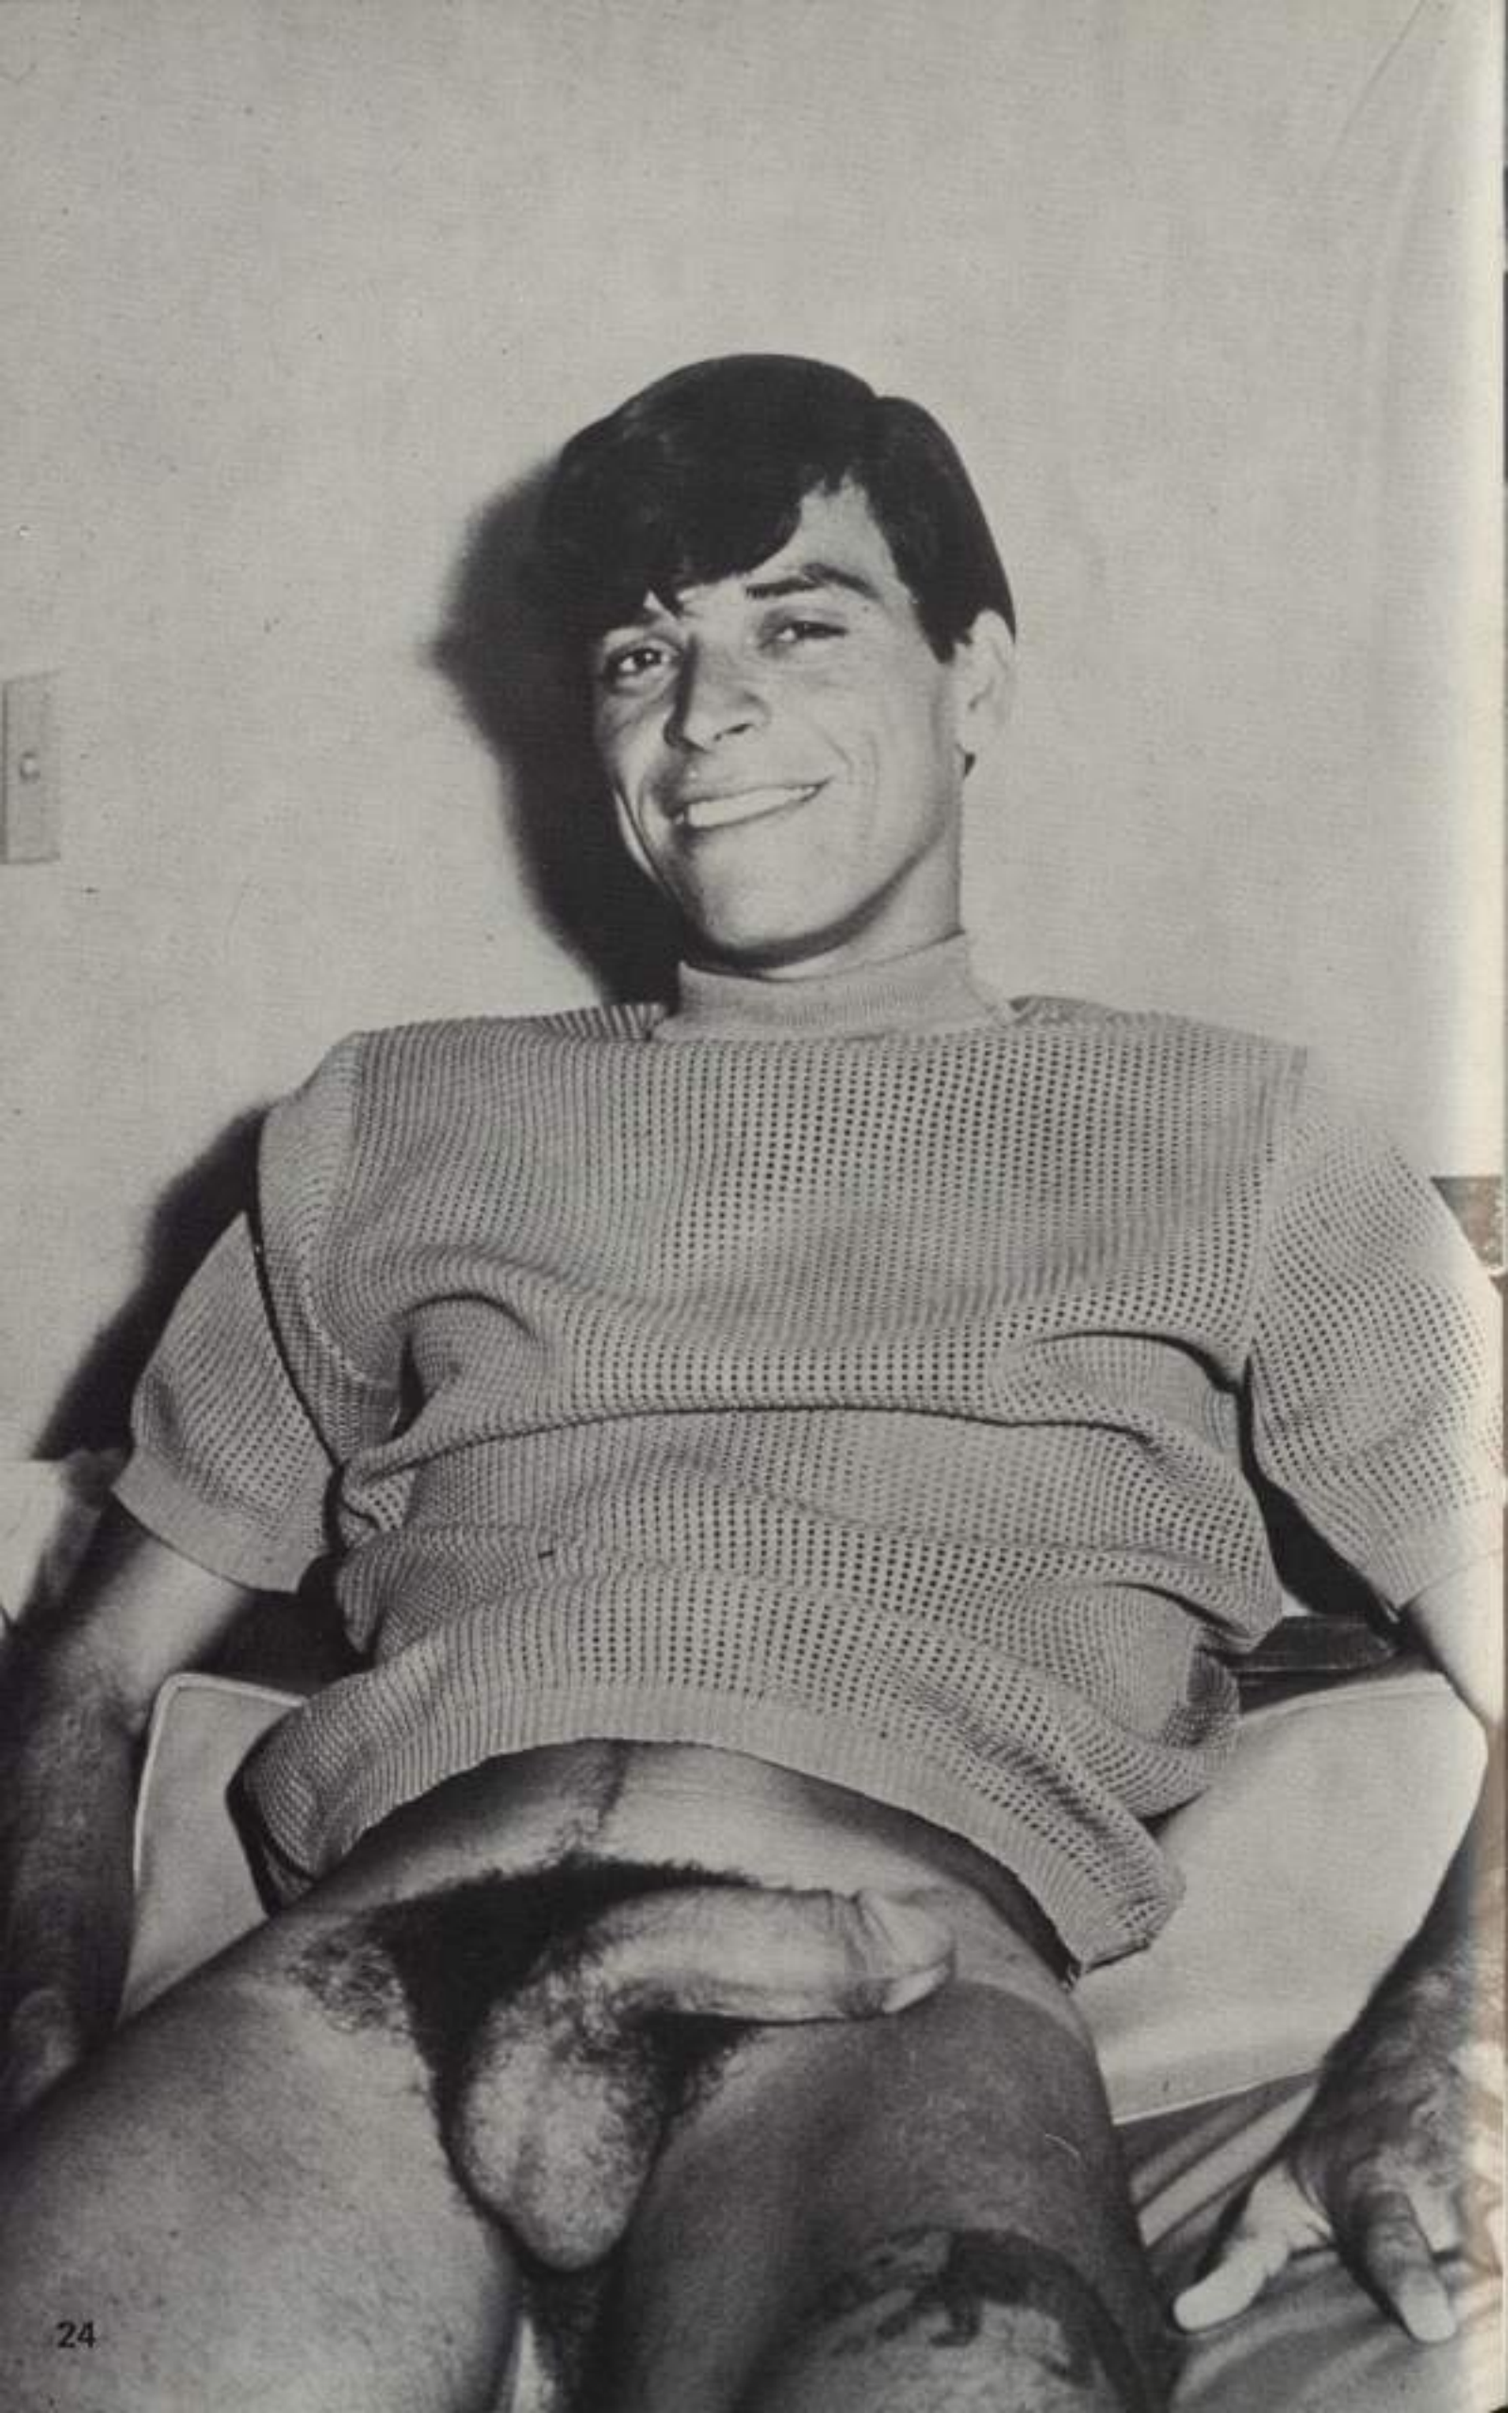
Paradise would be different. In paradise you would be able to enjoy fully the pleasure of one lover. Or, if ardor cooled, you would have another, more beautiful boy offered to take the former's place in so orderly a transition that bliss would be incarnate. At Acapulco it's oh so distracting when you settle down with someone you consider the ultimate, only to be diverted, and diverted, and diverted. . . . . .

JORGE

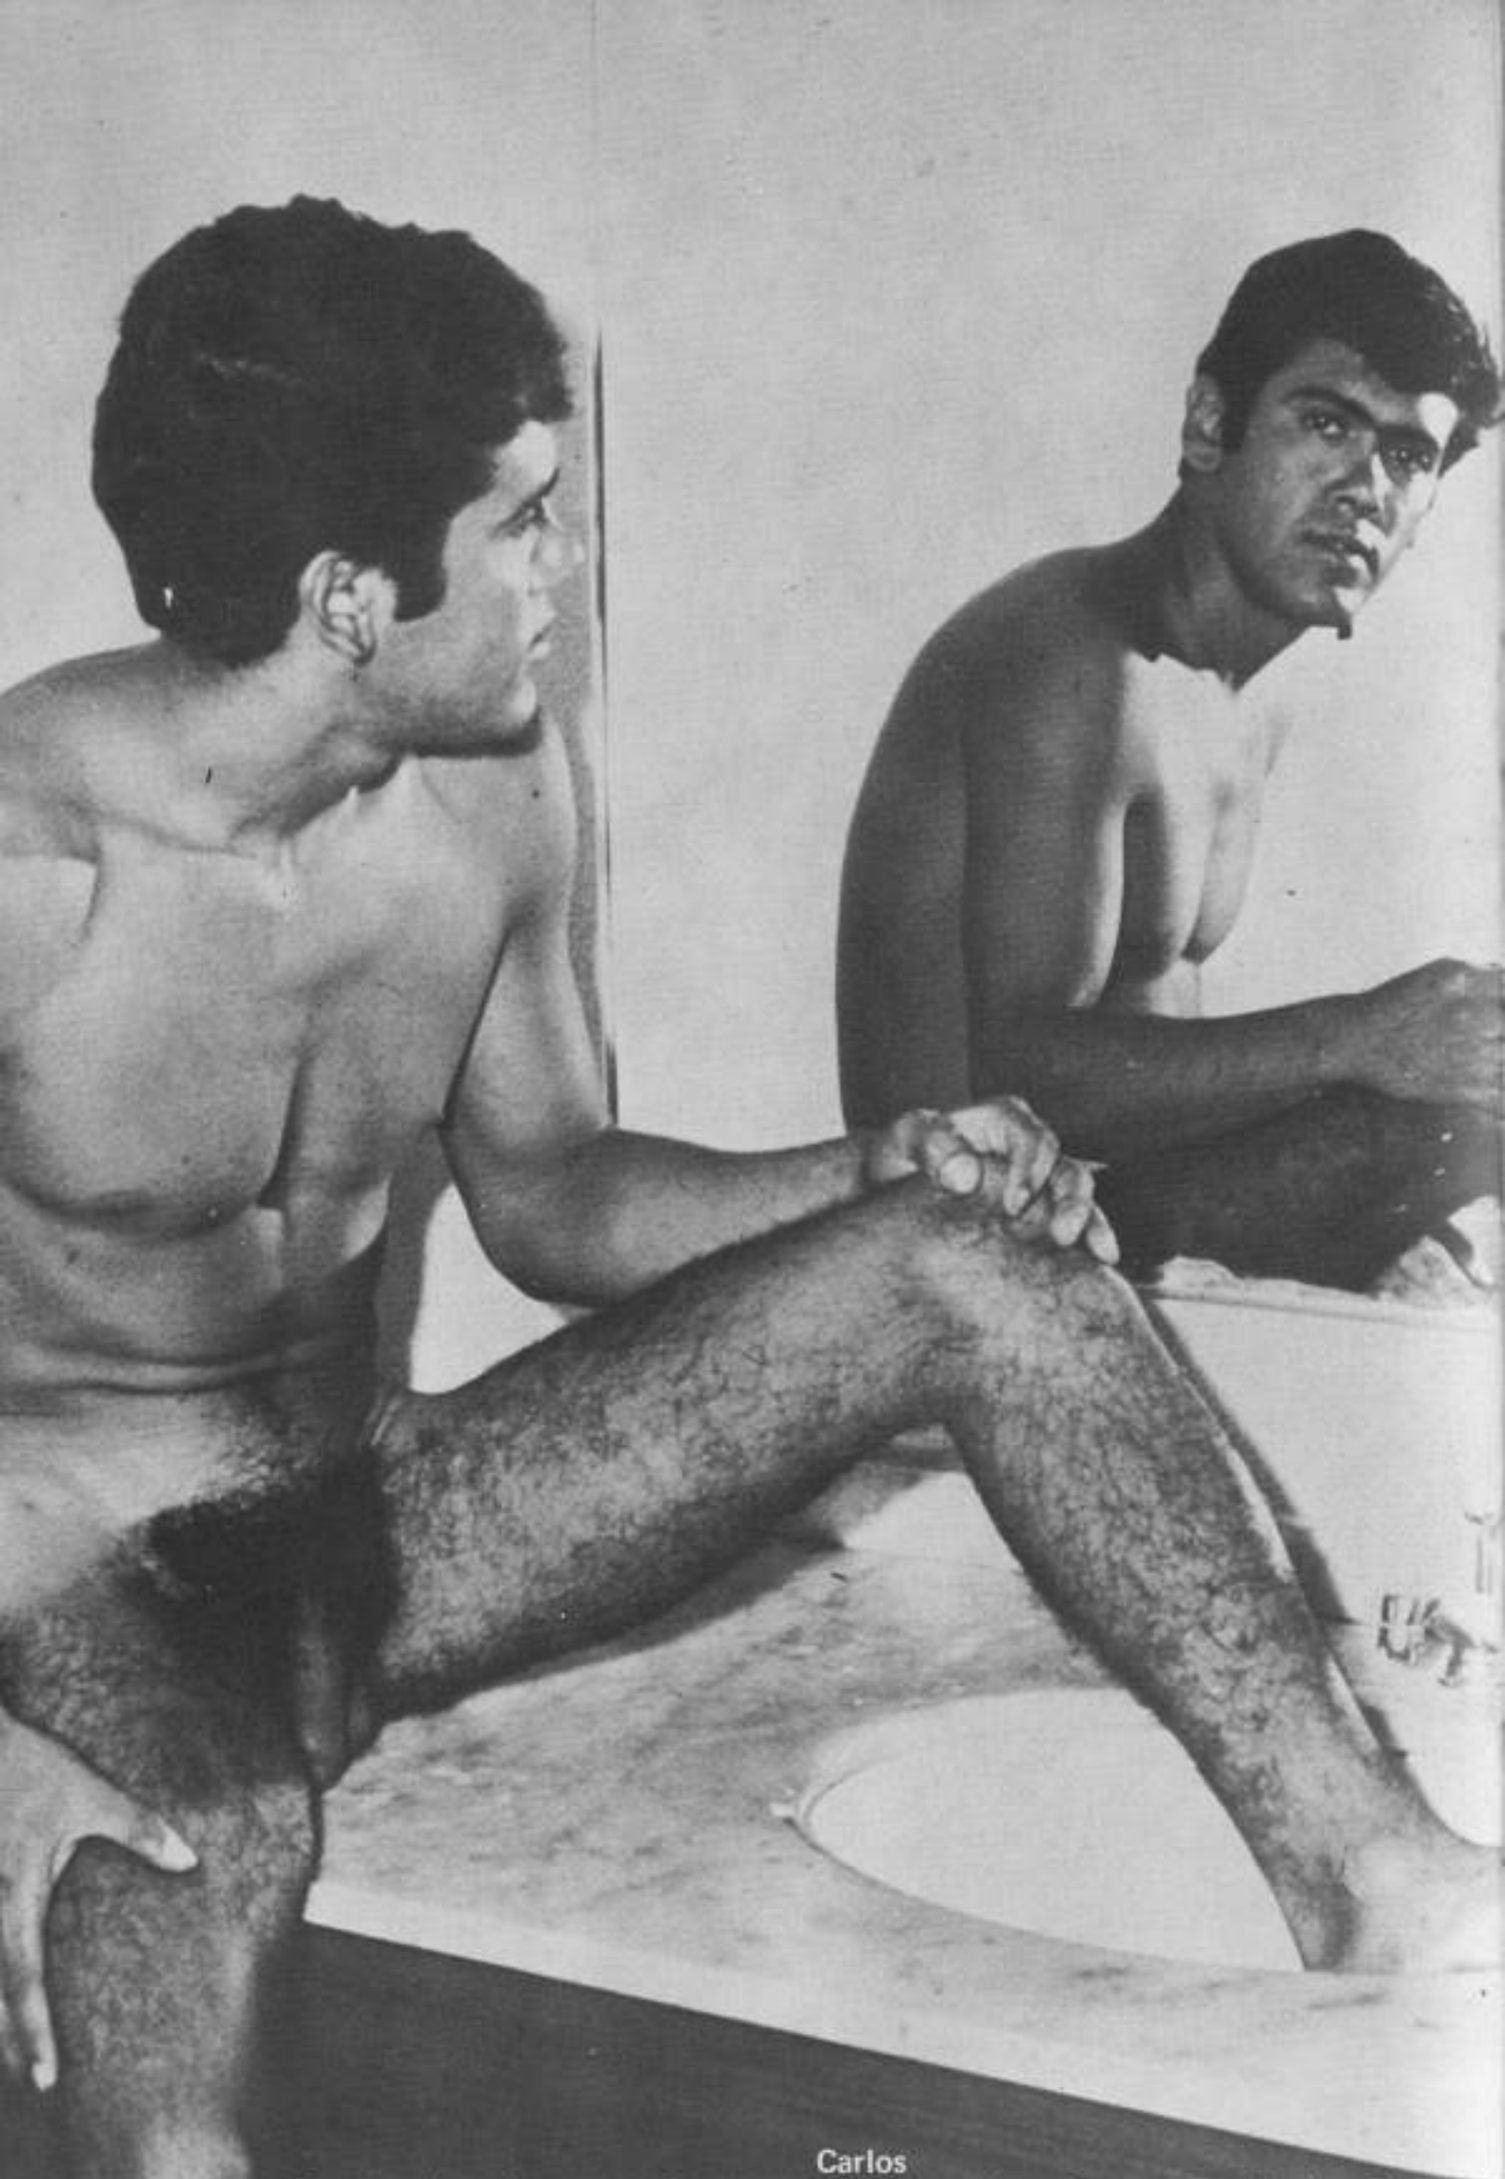


Jorge

Lived on the beach, day and night, except. . . Amenable, agreeable, willing and able. Likes the types of things money can buy. The jaguar on his upper thigh is the symbol of the car he hopes to receive one day from an admiter. Jorge likes to ride high!



NICK DiMARCO



Carlos

Big, butch and brawny. Playboy-beachboy, scion of a wealthy Mexico City family, favorite of the Acapulco winter jet-set. This is 21-year-old Carlos, water-skier and skindiver, whose favorite time of day was sunrise after a night of fun. Carlos was fascinated when Jay promised him the chance to appear in this collection—Carlos was always ready for new kicks!
